

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention discloses a method for editing a program in a digital broadcasting receiver, which can support an editing function of recorded data of a digital broadcasting program, without using an additional hardware. Firstly, wanted programs are clipped from a plurality of recorded programs, the clipped programs are individually recorded, wanted programs are selected from the clipped and recorded programs, and the selected programs are merged in a predetermined order according to a merging operation, thus allowing a user to produce a new program.